Some relief from the tropic heat of the last two days is promised for to-night. Forecast Smith announces that the hour of twilight will bring on slight cooler weather, which will serve to make life more bearable to the perspiring multitudes of Great Boston.

The official forecast for Boston is: For tonight and Tuesday, slightly cooler, with moderate West winds prevailing.

Entire East Is Sizzling.

Eleven children have died in Lowell as a result of the excessive heat of the last two days, according to reports of physicians.

The entire East has sizzled under the

WILSON SAYS HE'S NOT CANDIDATE

LYME, Ct., July 11, 1916. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, in an interview said he knew nothing except what he had seen in the newspapers regarding the question of his being a candidate for the governorship of New Jersey, the Democratic party of that State.

"I have not received letters on the subject," said Mr. Wilson, "and, therefore, it is impossible for me to say as to whether or not I have read several articles in the newspapers, in which my name has been mentioned as a possible candidate; and that is all I know about the matter. I have not time to read a British war paper at Princeton, which will take some time yet."

TAF, PROOF AGAINST HEAT, GOLFS TO-DAY.

BEVERLY, July 11.—President Taft seems heat-proof. It was thought in Beverly to-day that the scorching hot wave would make a weighty man like the President keep to the cooling shades of Burgess Point. But the hot wave reckoned without the President's passion for golf.

Mr. Taft had a golf-match schedule with Henry C. Frick, the Pittsburgh steel

The President's smiling face radiated only intense satisfaction. The beat didn't seem to worry him at all. The Presidential family seems equally immune. Charles Taft was up and about in good season. He busied himself with the Naudit, his leg-o'-mutton sailing dory which has just been put in commission. It looks as though the paternal bun on the Naudit had been lifted.

Williams Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York, right-hand man of the Roosevelt administration while the Colonel was in the White House, and mentioned as the probable choice of President Taft, ex-President Roosevelt and Governor Charles E. Hughes as the Republican nominee for Governor in New York, is in Beverly. Mr. Loeb, whose visit is the result of

as a surprise, says he is here to "talk over the general political situation with the President." Recent incidents at Oyster Bay, he says, have nothing to do with his visit.

Asked if he came as a representative of Colonel Roosevelt, he replied: "No, I come as the old friend and loyal supporter of President Taft."

TECH, '08, TO DINE.
The regular bi-monthly dinner of the class of 1908, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will be held at the Technological Club, No. 83 Northway street, tomorrow.

Evening. H. T. Gerrieh has charge of the program. John T. Tobin, bridge engineer with the Virginia Railway Company, is class secretary.

LITTLE CHARGES JOHNSON FRAMED FIGHT TO LAST 7 ROUNDS FOR PICTURES

CHICAGO, July 11.—That Jack Johnson is going to "pull the moving picture" in the streets to win the fight is the talk of the least few second rounds is the startling story set in motion by George Little, Johnson's ex-manager, among other disclosures will be that Johnson has been told to come and promise to come back at Johnson.

He related a detailed story of a frame-up between all concerned in the Johnson fight, the making of rehearsals of the various blows struck.

"Johnson was compelled to agree that the fight at Reno would last seven rounds," said Little. "In order to be able to sell his fight in the class, I told me himself he had made it's compact."

"He talked it over with me and wanted me to make it, but I told him it was not his fight to make."

up as the side bet, and we were to leave $25.00 in the bank for the time being as a commitment for a return engagement with the referee as the price of the franchise, he said. I said, "I don't want to do that. I want the money with Croftro," and the franchise was sold to me. I told my friends just how the night was going—I can get affluence in the morning. I said, "I don't want to do that way."

—And then, the Kaufman fight was fixed. In the first place, Kaufman never was to know his share of the purse and I was to be a featured, no-decision fight. They framed it up for me. I was to be a featured fight the time of the agreement were Johnson, Kaufman and myself.

—Neither of the fighters would trust the other. So they agreed that if either

"I was Fooled," Says Jim
He declared in terms that could hardly be doubted that he had been sadly misled in the condition of the camp before he was told that he was not the only one in the training camp who had been fooled. The fact that $3,000 of Corbett's money had been paid out before he had been picked into the ranks of Johnson's backers, Corbett said, was a conclusive argument that he had been picked a loser instead of a winner.

"I was Fooled," Says Jim
"It is fortunate that I should have been fooled in Jeffrey's condition, as I was told James. But the fight is over now and there is nothing for me to do but to get on my feet and go to work," said Corbett, and also that of Joe Chernsky and other members of the camp that Jeff needed to get on his feet and go to work and "settled his own fancy in the matter."

CROWD BREAKS UP ROCKY POINT RACE

ROCKY POINT, R. I., July 11.—Spectators crowding upon the track and interfering with the runners broke up the first of the annual "Rocky Point" day races, which were held here today after a twenty-one day hiatus. When the twenty-one mile race was under way, Patrick Dinneen's friends claimed that competitors of Portland Zantzis attacked him. Italian runners, however, stated that the "Rocky Point" police were called upon to clear the track. The police then gave Dinneen, William "Big Boy" Zantzis, and a second Italian runner, Zantzis, a "thumbs down" and told them to leave. Dinneen, Zantzis, and the Italian runner were escorted to the beach and told to leave.

WAUWENOCK WINS RACE AT SQUAMTAN

The Wauwenock won a close race for the Zee in the penultimate of the Squamant Yacht Club held over the eight mile course. A light breeze with prevailing southerly, was the order of the day. The judges were George H. Bear and V. E. Kincaid. Only one boat completed the second class and power boat class.

WEDNESDAY.
 Jeff Deberry vs. J. Nelson, New York.
THURSDAY.
 American Athletic Club bouts.

FRIDAY.
 Willie Fink vs. Young George, New York.

The American Athletic Club will hold a show Thursday night which will be something out of the ordinary. There will be four hours in all, and every boxer on the bill is of Italian descent.

Ever since the American A. C. moved to their present quarters near Kew, they have been the favorite Italian club of the district. They have taken a deep interest in the glorie game. Hardly any show took place without a couple of sons of Italy appearing on the bill.

And what is more, the greater part of them have made good. For this reason the club management has set aside a special night this week, when the pick of them will be seen in action.

They are, of course, Salvatore Natoli and Tony...

turned on in these parts in a long time, facts that other gamewack, Tony Lorenzo, of the South. They are slated for six.

Young Jasper and Young Bradley are hooked up for the same distance, as are Young Matt and Young Tom.

The other host on the program is one that shapes up something like the "big boy" of the west, the way of coming the straining results. It is between Johnny Cavill and Pat Reeves.

QUAKER FIGHTER TO MEET MAINE CHAMP

The Terry Martin and Tom Sawyer match at Portland, Monday night has created a great deal of interest in the city. There in years. Manager Caley has received many orders for single seats for this match.

Terry Martin, arrived there yesterday, and doing his training at Portland Gymnasium. Sawyer is working at Cape Elizabeth and says he will beat Martin sure, as he feels he has improved one hundred per cent. since his last bout with Martin at Hallowell, where he was defeated by a fifteen minutes of the fastest rounds ever seen there.

The good preliminaries have been arranged to precede the main event.

ELMER COLLING WINS ONE-HOUR RACE

NEW HAVEN, July 11.—The chief attraction at the circuit bicycle races here, was an hour's unopposed race, which was won by Elmer Colling, of Lynn, Mass., with George Wiley of Syracuse, N. Y., second. Thirty-eight miles were covered in the hour.

CRACK SHOTS FROM THE NEW ENGLAND STATES IN WAKEFIELD RIFLE MEET

the sixth annual rifle tournament held at the Walden Hotel, New York City, on Wednesday, August 14, 1907. The champion was J. H. Johnson, Lieutenant Henry Comstock, of the United States army, who won the trophy by a record shooting count. All the crack shots from the United States and Canada are expected to be present.

The chief events of the range work is the intricate match which is held on the 100 yard line. The competitors are expected to show the relative strength of the three nations. The trophy is named after the famous hunter and sportsman, Lord Dunsley, who was killed in the summer of 1897 by a bear.

There will be a number of interesting events about the First of October of crack match which is to be held at the Walden Hotel. The trophy for the possession of this trophy will be the trophy of the United States army.

That Prize Fight Was Disgraceful, Demoralizing, Harmful

Why Permit Exhibition of the Fight in Moving Pictures? It is the Duty of Every Public Official to Oppose His Authority to Such an Exhibition

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Company

The prize fight between the negro and the white man at Reno was a disgrace from every point of view. It was a fraud upon the spectators who went thousands of miles—but they deserved to be defrauded, since they were seeking to gratify their love of brutality.

It was a pitiful exhibition of degradation and cruelty. A white man, made nervous, weak and incompetent by drink and debauchery, stood in the ring to be hammered down and finally defeated by a powerful young negro.

This newspaper protested against the fight from the beginning, it appealed to the Governor of California to prevent the brutal spectacle in that State—we now appeal to public officials everywhere to use the authority which they undoubtedly have to prevent the exhibition of the fight in moving pictures.

Such an exhibition simply stimulates brutality and cruelty. It will make race hatred more intense, IT CAN DO NO POSSIBLE GOOD.

The age has long since passed when muscular strength and the brutal fighting instinct counted for anything useful or necessary among civilized human beings.

Moving picture shows are frequented by children, and it is outrageous that a horrible spectacle of bloodshed, brutality and cruelty should be put before children.

Police officials, mayors of cities, district attorneys have or can find the authority to prevent a reproduction in moving pictures of a spectacle that WOULD ITSELF BE FORBIDDEN by law as degrading, criminal and against public policy.

We have no doubt that the mayors of Chicago, Boston, New York and many other American cities will follow the excellent example of the Mayor of San Francisco, who has declared officially that since the fight itself was driven from the State by public indignation he will not permit the fight in another form to appear upon the stage of any theatre in the city.

The fight was organized chiefly because those behind the brutal enterprise expected to make a great fortune from the degrading moving picture show.

The fact that the negro beat the white man has reduced enormously the value of the moving pictures—for where there is ignorant brutality there is also ignorant, brutal race hatred, and this race hatred will show in diminished patronage.

Race hatred having diminished the value of the shameful exhibition, let public decency suppress it entirely. Once it is known that the prize fight is forbidden in moving pictures, it will die out in the prize ring as well—and public fights between men, brutal and degrading, will fade away to join dog fighting, cock fighting, bear baiting, badger drawing, now everywhere suppressed.

Any public official that favors the exhibition in pictures of the degrading prize fight or fails to use his authority in opposition to such an exhibition is unworthy of public office and blind to his opportunity and duty.

"Mother Risks Life to Save Drowning Baby"

Just a Casual Newspaper Head—But a Very Important "News Item"

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Company

Mrs. O'Connor, wife of a barge captain, lives on the barge with the captain and Baby O'Connor, aged fourteen months.

The baby fell overboard one day. Mrs. O'Connor immediately jumped in. As it happens, she can't swim—but that didn't make any difference. Her BABY was overboard and she went overboard after it.

She held the baby above the water as long as she could, floundering until the weight of her wet skirt pulled her down. The baby went down last, held above her head.

Three men that could swim jumped in and took out the mother and the baby.

In the newspapers there appeared a casual little news heading, "Mother Risks Life to Save Drowning Baby." It didn't strike anybody as strange. The editor put it in a corner, the reporter and the copy-reader took it all for granted.

And quite naturally, for there is nothing more common than to see a woman risk her life for her child.

The mother risks her life on the day of the child's birth, and until the child dies she is ready to risk her life for it at any moment.

Take a hundred women with a hundred babies, drop the hundred babies overboard—and in less than two seconds you will see one hundred women in the water—not ONE left on shore.

Do you realize what that has meant in the world's history! It has meant that the millions upon millions of helpless, defenseless children HAVE EVERY ONE OF THEM HAD A DEVOTED WOMAN FOR DEFENDER.

Can you see the long martyrdom through which women have passed struggling and striving to save their children, dying for them, living for them, suffering for them, grieving for them!

There is no such tragedy in all the miserable history of our defective savage earth as the tragedy of the suffering of mothers.

And the world takes it all for granted. When a man risks his life, or gives up his life for another, THAT IS NEWS. The Bible itself is authority for the statement, "Greater love hath no MAN than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." But when a mother jumps into the water, unable to swim, or when she rushes into a burning house to save her child—that isn't news—it's merely a matter of course.

And lucky it is for the world that it isn't news.

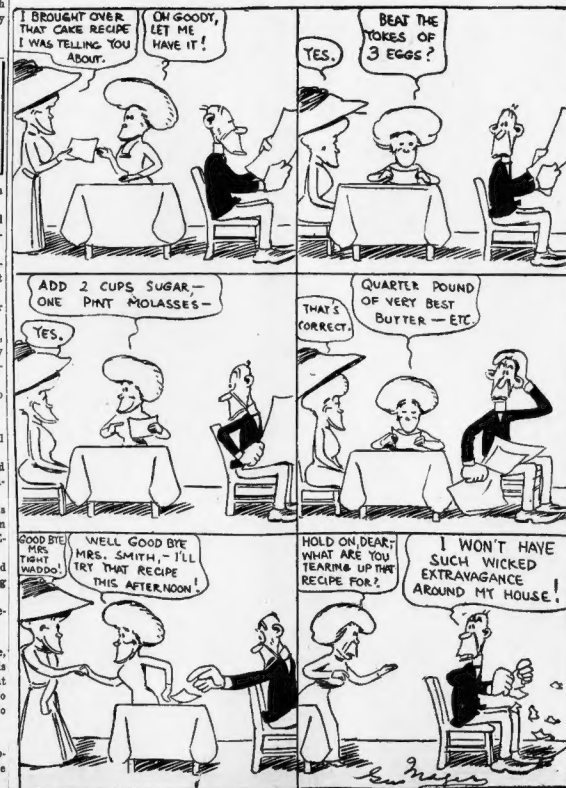

Upon the fact that there is nothing new or surprising in the devotion of mothers is based what little civilization we have, what little progress the world has made.

FIGHTING BOB EVANS

WRITER OF

THE BATTLE FOR THE PACIFIC

THE sound and patriotic position held by Mr. Hearst with reference to the navy of the United States should meet with a cordial response from the people of the country.

That we should have a navy strong enough and efficient enough to protect our territory is not the only demand that our thinking countrymen are making. They want peace, and they believe that we should be strong enough to give weight to our wishes when once they are expressed.

Admiral Dewey has said, "In time of peace prepare to maintain it," and this seems to be the keynote to all Mr. Hearst has written on this important subject. How to do this is the question, and in one way, and one way only, can it be answered. We must be so strong on the sea that we can dictate peace, not war. We must be able to say to those who insist on war that they can have it only at the cost of their own destruction.

THE VERY WORST USE WE CAN EVER MAKE OF OUR NAVY IS TO FIGHT WITH IT. It should be a power for peace, but we must be prepared to fight, and to fight successfully, if we are to maintain the position of peace-maker for the world.

The only logical reasons for taxing our people to maintain a navy are the defense of the country and the protection of its citizens in the peaceful exercise of their rights, commercial and otherwise, wherever they may happen to reside. Unless our naval force is such that we can successfully accomplish these things, the money of the taxpayers is being wasted. We must have a navy equal to all these demands.

The ships we have built since those proposed are among the best in the world, but a glance at the cost they would be called upon to do in case of war must convince any thinking person that they are sadly inadequate in number.

That our enlisted force is of the finest quality no one who knows them can doubt; but when it is used up, where is the reserve supply from which to draw? There is none, because we have neither a naval reserve nor a merchant marine to draw from.

Above all, we have not sufficient merchant ships under the American flag for coilers, transports and auxiliaries generally, and these are an absolute necessity. Other nations have realized this, but, as yet, we have not, and until we do the idea of playing the part of peace-maker, either for ourselves or for others, is an IDEA, pure and simple, and getting more so.

A GLANCE AT CONDITIONS IN THE PACIFIC, WHERE A BITTER COMMERCIAL WAR WILL SOONER OR LATER BE WAGED, DOES NOT ENCOURAGE THE BELIEF THAT WE CAN WIN IN SUCH A STRUGGLE.

We have everything needed to control a fair share of the commerce of the Pacific Ocean, except the ships. As these increase in number, as surely they must, the chances of friction with other nations will multiply rapidly and war may come at an hour's notice, unless we are strong enough to deter others from taking that chance. Peace will depend absolutely upon the size of our fleet and its power of endurance, which means reserve men and a merchant marine from which to draw them, and the auxiliaries to make them effective.

We are fortunate in the fact, IF FACT IT BE, that no nation, just now, wishes to interfere with our Pacific possessions. I say that it is a FORTUNATE condition, because, if any one were so disposed, it would be a shooey job to remove our flag from all the islands we have acquired in the Pacific and raid our coast from Alaska to the Gulf of Mexico.

That this may not be done depends on the peaceful disposition of our neighbors and our ability to convince them that war with us would be unprofitable. We can convince them of this last proposition only by maintaining, ON THIS PACIFIC COAST, a fleet more powerful than any probable enemy could bring against us.

C. D. Evans

IN THE STORY. "HERMAN, save me child!" The cry rang out above the roar of the flames and reached the ears of James Zigg, who rushed into the blazing hallway despite the efforts of his comrades to restrain him from what was a foolish act. To enter the street seemed certain death. After many moments of terrible suspense, a flame was seen emerging from the inferno. It was the half-clad Zigg, and over his shoulder he bore the unconscious form of a beautiful girl of eighteen. When Zigg was in the hospital fully was a frequent supposition, suggesting into the air, in his visitor, and when at last he was able to return to duty anxious to say he and the girl he rescued were made one.

"Ah, this is indeed comfort," said Thomas Thorne, as he gazed around his room. He had just eaten a delicious dinner cooked by his young wife, who was on the other side of the stove, looking down on one of his children. "We have given to the bank now, dearie," she remarked. "Ah, this is the way to live," said Thomas. "When I think of the hotel I was in, and the cheerless rooms and the restaurant clothing—"

As Harold Thorne was walking out, Harold Thorne had come to the great the streets of the great city to which he had come in search of fame and fortune, he saw an old lady drop a pocketbook. Harold had not eaten a bite for three days, for he found the great city a hard place, but his honest heart prompted him to stop. After the old lady and return her purse. Opening it, he handed Harold a dime as a reward, and with this he purchased food, a substantial meal, some clean clothes to suit his room at the hotel, and from this beginning he built up his great fortune.
